Excerpt from The House and Sign Painters' Recipe Book: Containing Many Valuable Recipes and Methods and General Information in the Various Branches of the Trade

In presenting this little book it has been the writers object to place it into the hands of painters in a handy form for future reference.

Many of these recipes have cost me several times more than the price of this work, and are a collection running through over twenty years service at the trade, with improvements on some; and a great many are my own formulas, while there are a great many that I have never experimented with and therefore give them for what they are worth.

In presenting this work the writer has strived to curtail as much unnecessary matter as possible, therefore giving more real information than some books three times as large.

He will also ask the pardon of his fellow craft-men, who have had a long and varied experience, for giving much, that they may know as well, or better, than himself. They should know, however, that there are a great many in our ranks who are young and worthy men; lie hopes, therefore, that this work may be an aid to them, however slight, in placing them in among the craft.

To all those who have not had the opportunity to serve an apprenticeship under a good master, and who is ambitious to excel in the art, is this little work especially dedicated.
